Servicemen	5080 <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Extracts from Edwin Chirgwin's Rustic Jottings. He was born in Newlyn in 1892 and a teacher in St. Ives Boys' School in 1913, enlisted in The Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry in 1914 and served as signaller in India and the Middle East until the Turks were defeated in 1917. The 1/4th Battalion of the DCLI embarked for India in the transport Assaye in October 1914, went to Aden in January 1916 and to Egypt and Palestine in January 1917. The hard-fought campaigns were particularly poignant for him as he knew all the place-names from his encyclopaedic knowledge of the Bible. The entries have been taken from his Rustic Jottings, a large miscellany of Cornish history, language, folklore and dialect recorded over 60 years.
Servicemen	5092 <input type="checkbox"/>	8 Photos of Thomas John Jenkin and others who were in the Royal 1st Devon Yeomanry during WW1. From John Cecil Jenkin. The 1st Devon Troop was raised on 15 May 1794 because of the threat from the French Revolution (1789-1799). It became the 1st Devonshire Yeomanry Cavalry in 1803 and took part in The Napoleonic Wars (1803–1815). The regiment was renamed as the Royal 1st Devonshire Yeomanry Cavalry in 1871 with Headquarters at Exeter and fought in the Second Boer War (1899-1902). In 1901, the regiment was renamed the Royal 1st Devon Imperial Yeomanry and reorganised in four squadrons and a machine gun section. On 1 April 1908, the regiment was renamed for the final time as the Royal 1st Devon Yeomanry and equipped as hussars. From 1908-1920 its volunteer reserves were part of the Territorial Force. (Information from internet). Despite its name many soldiers were Cornishmen enlisted at Bodmin. Most were from a farming background and so knew which end of a horse went first. After their cavalry training on the beach at Teignmouth they went to France at the end of 1914 as infantry and never saw their horses again. They were at Mons and then went to Gallipoli in the liner Olympic and fought in the trenches there. After that they went to Egypt and Palestine, returning to Belgium and France in 1918. (Information from Cecil Jenkin)

Numbers on the map are dates, x's are the mines sometimes followed by the number of mines observed. Mines caused the loss of many Belgian fishing vessels and lives even before Belgium was actually involved in the war. Donated by Andre Goderis.

Refugee	3338 <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	The British map published June 17 1946 gives an idea of the extent of the minefields in the Irish Sea, the Channel and the North Sea. The A-B-C-D pencil line was made by Andre Goderis, with the positions mentioned in the two 'confidential' sailing orders dating 23/5/40. He wanted to know where it led. The route steers free from the minefields to a position off Dover and as the vessel was requisitioned it suggests that she would be used in the Operation Dynamo which was about to start. Instead, the B30 was sent to Dartmouth where all Belgian fishing vessels were assembled to await orders. After leaving Blankenberge, the B30 was held up off Dunkerque for 24 hours. Andre's brother recalls the scene of Dunkerque on fire and the noise of German planes overhead and the frightening gunfire. Having seen what was going on in Dunkerque Andre's father and his crew refused to sail to Dunkerque. They had to leave the ship and were taken in custody during the time the B30 was used in the operation . Donated by Andre Goderis.

The photograph is a representation of the hundreds of fishing boats that escaped from France to Newlyn in June 1940 and the following months. This is a report of one such boat and will be of special interest to the le Breton family. 16th December 1940 the crabber Emigrant Cm 2212 left Camaret with 14 escapers, including two RAF pilots, nailed into a secret compartment. The crabber was searched by the Germans with their dogs. They went ashore wishing them Bon Voyach!. This escape was led by French Airforce pilot Jacques Andrieux and the legendary Daniel Lomenech who became a leader in secret operations. Among the crew was Jean Louis le Breton who later married a local girl & settled in Penzance. Colonel Andrieux wrote of their arrival off Cornwall, The skipper shouted "Cornwall straight ahead!" Everyone was delirious. The boat rushed on through a heavy swell. England was there, a dark line on the horizon. The skipper unrolled the Tricolour which was wrapped around his body. In an instant our colours were flapping at the masthead. We were welcomed like heroes. Surrounded by men of the security service, we left for London. From DD Facebook.

Post WW2	4757 <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Photo of HMS Minerva (F45). Minerva was a Leander-class frigate of the Royal Navy. She was built by Vickers Armstrong. She was launched on 19 December 1964 and commissioned on 14 May 1966. In 1982 during the Falklands War Minerva was part of the 'Bristol Group' and thus joined the war rather late, not reaching the Falkland Islands until the 26 May. While there, Minerva performed a number of duties, including escort for other vessels. She suffered no damage during her deployment during the Falklands War. She returned to Devonport in September.
Post WW2	4759 <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	HMS Glamorgan was a County-class destroyer of the Royal Navy with a displacement of 5,440 tonnes. The ship was built by Vickers-Armstrong in Newcastle Upon Tyne and named after the Welsh county of Glamorgan. She was launched on 9 July 1964, and was delivered to the Royal Navy two years later. In the spring and early summer of 1982 Glamorgan was involved in the Falklands War during which she engaged Argentine land forces and protected shipping. In the last days of the war Argentine navy technicians fired a land-based MM-38 Exocet missile causing damage and killing 14 sailors.
